MONCTON, N. B., April 29—With Russell Thaw at the controls, a 14-passenger Lockheed plane landed here today prepared to transport the two-man crew of the Russian plane, Moskva, to New York on their arrival here.

BOSTON, April 29—Bound on an errand of mercy to the ice-locked stretches of Misou island in northeastern New Brunswick, a two-plane rescue expedition took off from East Boston airport today to rush medical assistance to the two-man crew of the Russian plane, Moskva, forced down while enroute from Moscow to New York.

ST. JOHN, N. B., April 29—Two hardy Canadians set out at dawn today to aid Col. Vladimir Kokkinaki and Major Mikhail Gordinenko, the two Soviet airmen whose attempted non-stop flight from Moscow to New York ended with their plane forced down and wrecked in a marsh on bleak Misou island in the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

One of the airmen—it was not definitely ascertained which—was believed painfully injured and in need of hospital care.

One report reaching St. John said it was understood the injured man was Col. Kokkinaki.

The Soviet twin-engine monoplanes made a forced landing, evidently the result of engine trouble or lack of fuel, last evening after (Continued on Page Eight)

CROSS PETITION ASKS DAMAGES IN AUTO CRASH

William Eblin, Circleville Route 5, asks $350 for personal injuries and damages to his automobile in an answer and cross petition filed Saturday in Common Pleas court in the action instituted by William W. Wheeler, Ashville.

Wheeler had filed suit against William and Viola Eblin seeking $253 for damages to his car. The actions are based on an auto collision Feb. 26, 1938 on Route 23, north of Circleville. An answer was filed by Viola Eblin.

Art Ability Wins Honors For High School Senior

Senior to be honored today by "Who's Who" is Miriam Elizabeth Weaver, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl I. Weaver, Half avenue. Miriam is one of the outstanding personalities of the class of 1939 because of her amazing art talent which she has used freely and graciously for any activities that require her talent.

She is graduating from the classical course. She recently participated in the Senior Scholarship tests.

She has been a member of the Sketch club since its beginning in 1936, serving this year as its president. She is an art editor of the "Circle". She recently gave a talk illustrated by life-sized drawings of period hats before the Monday club of Circleville.

Miriam served on the Junior-Senior banquet committee designing the programs and painting Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs in life-sized figures. During her junior year she was a student librarian.

She was elected an honorary member of the Senior Girl Reserves because of her outstanding ability and help as an art student.

Gracious and unassuming, Miriam is never too busy to turn out a poster or design for any school activity. Her spirit of cooperation has endeared her to the members of her class who point with pride to this gifted senior.

This is the second in a series of seven "Who's Who Among High School Seniors," selections for honors being made by a faculty committee. The order of their appearance is decided by lot.

"VOTE ON WAR" BILL FAVORED

Thousands Of Letters Plead For Uncle Sam To Evade Any Conflict

WASHINGTON, April 29—Encouraged by thousands of letters closing with the appeal — "keep us out of war" — congressional sponsors of legislation compelling a national referendum before any declaration of war today pledged a finish fight on the measure at this session of congress.

Advocates of the proposal felt that Adolf Hitler's speech rejecting President Roosevelt's peace conference suggestion increased the need for the war referendum measure, and completed plans for public hearings on it beginning shortly after May 6.

Senator Hatch (D) New Mexico, chairman of the senate judiciary subcommittee handling the resolution promised sponsors he would not pigeon-hole it, but would report it favorably, unfavorably or without recommendation. Senator Borah (R) Idaho, is the only one of the three subcommittee members supporting the resolution.

Failure of the senate foreign relations committee to agree on any neutrality legislation brightened hopes of the war referendum forces, too. The committee concluded four weeks of hearings today, badly split over seven pending neutrality proposals. There appeared little prospect that anything like an agreement could be secured before May 15, with chances about even for the administration-favored cash and carry neutrality bill.

ILLINOIS JURORS FREE NEGRESS IN DEATH TRIAL

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., April 29—The woman whose slaying of a University of Illinois student touched off a widespread inquiry into vice and gambling in this college town was free today but the projected cleanup will be pushed without a letup, prosecutors declared.

The woman held blameless for the killing is Mrs. Margaret Struthers, a Negress and proprietor of the Pullman Hotel, outside of which William Spurrier, 20, of Toledo, O., was shot to death one night last February.

Special Prosecutor Walker Butler said Mrs. Struthers' acquittal by a jury yesterday will have no bearing on the other cases.

WASHINGTON D.C. MAN KILLED AS AUTO HITS POLE

Arthur Shanklin, 61, On Way To Cincinnati, Fatally Hurt East Of City

BODY PINNED UNDER CAR

Companion's Injuries Minor; Several Vehicles Skid Off Route 22

Arthur Parlette Shanklin, 61, of 2114 North street, N. W., Washington, D. C., was instantly killed Friday afternoon when the auto in which he was riding skidded, overturned and struck a utility pole on Route 22, east of Circleville.

The accident happened along the farm of Miss Minnie Knight, Mrs. Elsie T. Galsberg, of 3745 Connecticut avenue, Washington, D. C., driver of the car, escaped with abrasions and bruises.

Mrs. Galsberg told members of the sheriff's department the car skidded when she applied the brakes to slow down after passing the brow of the hill and noticing another car in the ditch. She said she was driving Mr. Shanklin to Green Hills, Cincinnati, where he expected to visit with his son, Robert. Mr. Shanklin's body was pinned under the car.

The body was removed to the Albaugh funeral home pending word from relatives. Mr. Shanklin was an electrical engineer. Internal injuries and shock were believed the cause of his death.

Other Cars Wrecked

Prior to the accident in which Mr. Shanklin was killed, an auto driven by Jerome M. Lederer, 1512 Fontaine road, Lexington, Ky., skidded off the highway into a ditch. The car did not overturn. Mr. Lederer and a companion, Leo Oppenheimer, escaped injury.

Three other cars were involved in minor accidents at the hill about the same time. An auto driven by Claude Eshbaugh and owned by W. H. Miller, both of Mars, Pa., was slightly damaged when bumped by an auto driven by Mrs. Hazel Welsh, of Detroit. Officers were told Mrs. Welsh's car skidded and the bumper struck the Miller car.

Later another car skidded off the highway when it was being slowed down for the other accidents. The driver's name was not learned.

Deputy Sheriffs Robert Adkins and Earl Weaver investigated the accidents. Wet pavement was blamed for the accident series.

ITALIAN COUNCIL APPROVES MORE CASH FOR ARMY

ROME, April 29—Additional expenditures for Italy's armed forces were authorized by the Italian council of ministers today at a meeting presided over by Premier Mussolini.

Il Duce returned to Rome from his country villa at Rocca Della Caminate to attend the meeting. Mussolini will confer tomorrow with General Walther Von Brauchitsch, chief of the German army general staff. The German militarist yesterday spoke with General Alberto Pariani of the Italian army concerning Italian-German military dispositions in event of war.

A brief communique issued after the cabinet session said that the meeting had dealt with provisions "for increasing the practical efficiency of the army and territorial defenses."

Various matters of international concern were discussed. The total amount of new military appropriations was not disclosed. In connection with preparedness measures, it was understood that the cruises of several Italian vessels to the New York World's Fair had been cancelled.

M'CRADY'S SUIT SET FOR TRIAL

Judge Phil Henderson To Hear Damage Action For $13,361.40

The suit of William F. McCrady, W. Franklin street, as administrator of the estate of John McCrady, against the Benedict Transportation Lines, Inc., of Columbus, has been assigned for Monday, May 22. Judge Meeker Terwilliger said the case will be heard by Judge Phil Henderson, of Logan.

Mr. McCrady seeks $13,361.40 for the death of his son in an auto and truck collision on Route 23, north of Circleville, on March 13, 1936.

Two other suits grew out of this accident. Mrs. Ruth Elsie, Washington township, obtained a $5,666 judgment for the death of her husband, Asa.

Gilbert Dowden, as administrator of the estate of Bernard Dowden, Waynt township, asks $25,000 in a suit pending in court.

County grand jurors will begin their session Monday with about 27 cases for consideration. George E. Gerhardt, prosecutor, estimates the session will require about two days.

Judge Terwilliger announced that an assignment of pending civil cases will be made Monday.

MEXICANS HOLD AMERICAN MINE MAN FOR MONEY

MEXICO CITY, April 29—Oscar Lampe, 43, assistant manager of the Consolidated Mining company in the state of Guanajuato, is in the hands of kidnappers who are holding him for ransom, it was revealed today.

Lampe, a married man and father of three children, was carried off into the mountains after being seized in front of his home by five armed men in the city of Guanajuato Thursday night.

The kidnapers left a note which said: "If authorities are advised, or if we are followed, we will kill our prisoner."

Lampe was spirited away in an automobile which drove off in the direction of St. Nicolas and later was found abandoned in the foothills.

Lampe's wife asked authorities to heed the warnings of the kidnapers. American Consul General James Stewart was informed of the kidnaping.

Funeral services for Allen Meadows, 62, a tenant on the Walter Spradlin farm near Era, who died Friday of injuries received when kicked by a horse, will be held at 2 p. m. Sunday at Index, Ky. Burial will be at Index. Mr. Meadows is survived by his widow, Pearl, and seven children. Mrs. Stella Henry, of Illinois; Kelley and Alvis Meadows, of Kentucky; and Hubert Erma. Geneva and Naomi, all at home.

JURORS FIND DOCTOR MURDERED HIS WIFE

Lyle Dingman, 32, Drops Eyes As Verdict Is Read; Push From Window Fatal

MORRISON, Ill., April 29—Dr. Lyle Dingman, 32-year-old veterinarian, was found guilty by a jury today of manslaughter for the death of his wife Laura, 28.

Mrs. Dingman, a distant cousin of the wealthy Wanamaker family of Philadelphia, was a former resident of London, Ont., where her parents still live.

The verdict against Dr. Dingman carries a mandatory sentence of one to 14 years in the penitentiary. The jurors had debated eight hours.

Dr. Dingman, who has had the almost solid support from his neighbors in Prophetstown throughout the trial, took the verdict calmly. He lowered his eyes but made no comment.

The state had asked for a murder verdict, charged that he had pushed his wife to her death from the second story window of their bedroom on the night of March 18.

Her body was found the next morning on the lawn outside. The prosecution contended that Dingman allowed her to lie on cold ground until her life ebbed away in the freezing weather.

Dingman denied any part in her death, saying that he had fallen asleep shortly after they had returned from a tavern tour and that when he awakened she was missing. He said he searched the house and grounds for her but then returned to bed when he failed to find her.

The prosecution stressed a change in his story made soon after his arrest in which he said his wife had fallen out of the window during a scuffle.

F. D. R. REMAINS SILENT AFTER HITLER SPEAKS

HYDE PARK, N. Y., April 29—President Roosevelt adopted a momentary policy of silent watchful waiting today as sentiment crystallized in European capitals over German Chancellor Hitler's newest territorial demands on Poland.

There was strictly no comment from the Hyde Park house in answer to Hitler's Reichstag rejection of the President's peace proposal.

Further, it was fairly well anticipated by presidential aides that Mr. Roosevelt would ignore the Hitler challenge when he speaks in New York Sunday afternoon formally to open the World's Fair.

The President and Mrs. Roosevelt were busy today entertaining Crown Prince Olav and Crown Princess Martha of Norway, first of the royal visitors to arrive for the New York Fair.

The attractive Norwegian couple were to be introduced this noon to one of Mrs. Roosevelt's famous picnics.

Olav and Martha were enjoying most informal hospitality. Guest lists were taboo. Dinner parties at the Hudson river estate called only for black ties and "relatives and neighbors" sat around the board.

The crown prince and crown princess of Norway arrived at Poughkeepsie late yesterday afternoon. President and Mrs. Roosevelt, accompanied by their naval military aides, were waiting on the chilly, overclouded lumber dock as the White House yacht swung smartly in.

Two men held in London on charges of corn theft confessed to Deputy Sheriff Miller Fissell, Friday, to the theft of $2 bushels of corn from Richard Hudson, Scioto township, last April 4. Deputy Fissell said the men are Walter S. Jackson, 26, of Portsmouth, and Tillman Adkins, Jr., 19, of Columbus. The corn, the officer said, was sold in Portsmouth.

Columbus Girl Falls Into Water; Defiance Youth Dies In Maumee

COLUMBUS, April 29—Funeral arrangements were to be completed today for Jeannine, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Worthy D. Gee, Columbus, who was drowned yesterday when she fell headlong into a fish pond in the rear of a neighbor's home. The child was 20 months old.

DEFIANCE O. APRIL 29—

Because he did not know how to swim, Lester Kolb, 17, was dead today, drowned in the rain-swollen Maumee river when a boat in which he and another youth were fishing sprang a leak and sank in 10 feet of water. His companion, Bernard Fritz, 20, swam ashore. Kolb was the son of Leo Kolb, Delaware township farmer.

MANY DISTRICTS SHARE AUTO TAG FUND RECEIPTS

Pickaway county, Circleville and villages of the county received $32,688, Saturday, in a distribution of automobile license tag receipts by the state bureau of motor vehicles. The distribution was made on the basis of 47 percent to the county and 53 percent to cities and villages.

Pickaway county receives $27,688. The remainder of the distribution includes Circleville $3,492.50, Ashville $600, Commercial Point $150, Darbyville and South Bloomfield $41.25, New Holland $312.50, Tariton $62.50, and Williamsport $300.

THREE COUNTIES FINED FOR FISHING ILLEGALLY

Three men paid fines of $25 and costs each in Mayor W. B. Cady's court, Saturday, on charges of fishing illegally.

They were Norville Forsythe, 21, and William Conaway, 46, both of Atlanta, and Edward R. Hott, 22, of New Holland Route 1. All pleaded guilty to charges of fishing with stake lines in Deer creek.

Conservation Officers Clarence Francis, of Pickaway county, and Chalmers Burns, of Fayette county, said they confiscated about 20 lines containing from one to eight hooks on a line. The officers made the arrests Friday night.

WARSAW GIRDS FOR DEFENSE OF VITAL FREE CITY

Hitler's Next Move Feared After Breaking 10-Year Non-Aggression Pact

ALLIES MAY HALT COUP?

Military Action Promised By Great Britain And French

WARSAW, April 29—A defiant Poland made ready today to "resist by all means in her power," if necessary, any German coup in the free city of Danzig or the Polish corridor.

Warning to this effect was served after Chancellor Hitler, in his Reichstag speech, denounced the German-Polish non-aggression pact.

Poland's determination to remain steadfast against German demands for Danzig was stressed in a statement made on behalf of the Polish foreign office in response to Hitler's renewal of his claims on Poland.

In his speech yesterday Hitler repudiated the 10-year non-aggression pact with Poland which was to have run until 1944. He demanded restoration of Danzig to the Reich and revealed Germany recently made Poland a "concrete offer," which the Polish government rejected.

A government spokesman, after reading Germany's formal notification of the denunciation of the treaty, made it clear that Poland will decline to yield to Hitler's demand for a sovereign German right of way across the Polish Corridor.

To support its stand, the Polish government is fortified by new defensive arrangements with Great Britain and France, into which Soviet Russia may soon be drawn on a formal basis.

"Poland," said the spokesman, "feels that demands for German rights across the Corridor are unjustified by actual German requirements, while they represent a threat to Poland's vital interests."

May Permit Traffic

"Poland is prepared to grant German facilities in the Corridor for transit of German traffic, but will resist by all means in her power any attempt to create a fait accompli regarding this territory."

(The right of way sought by Germany would link the great bulk of the Reich with East Prussia, from which it is now separated by the Polish Corridor.)

As for Danzig, Polish quarters reiterated willingness to eliminate the nominal League of Nations administrative supervision and substitute joint German-Polish governmental control.

But it was stressed that any coup inside or outside the free city designed to bring Danzig under Nazi sovereignty will result in speedy Polish military action.

Hungarians Visit Adolf

BERLIN, April 29—Quickly following up his Reichstag speech with political action to cement Germany's friendships, Chancellor Adolf Hitler concentrated today on securing Hungary in the spreading German orbit.

The Fuehrer, who yesterday turned down President Roosevelt's peace proposals and denounced the Anglo-German naval and German-Polish non-aggression agreements, moved swiftly to form a "ring of political friendship" around the Reich in opposition to what he regards as Anglo-French efforts to encircle Germany with potential foes.

Hitler prepared to receive Hungary's two chief diplomats, Premier Count Paul Teleki and Foreign Minister Count Stephen Csaky, who are arriving for a visit of several days.

During their stay in Germany, Teleki and Csaky will engage in important talks with German authorities designed to cement even tighter the bonds between Hungary and the Nazi Reich.

It was believed that Hungarian-Polish relations also will be discussed.

Three men paid fines of $25 and costs each in Mayor W. B. Cady's court, Saturday, on charges of fishing illegally.

They were Norville Forsythe, 21, and William Conaway, 46, both of Atlanta, and Edward R. Hott, 22, of New Holland Route 1. All pleaded guilty to charges of fishing with stake lines in Deer creek.

WARSAW GIRLS FOR DEFENSE OF VITAL FREE CITY

Hitler's Next Move Feared After Breaking 10-Year Non-Aggression Pact

ALLIES MAY HALT COUP?

Military Action Promised By Great Britain And French

WARSAW, April 29—A defiant Poland made ready today to "resist by all means in her power," if necessary, any German coup in the free city of Danzig or the Polish corridor.

Warning to this effect was served after Chancellor Hitler, in his Reichstag speech, denounced the German-Polish non-aggression pact.

Poland's determination to remain steadfast against German demands for Danzig was stressed in a statement made on behalf of the Polish foreign office in response to Hitler's renewal of his claims on Poland.

In his speech yesterday Hitler repudiated the 10-year non-aggression pact with Poland which was to have run until 1944. He demanded restoration of Danzig to the Reich and revealed Germany recently made Poland a "concrete offer," which the Polish government rejected.

A government spokesman, after reading Germany's formal notification of the denunciation of the treaty, made it clear that Poland will decline to yield to Hitler's demand for a sovereign German right of way across the Polish Corridor.

To support its stand, the Polish government is fortified by new defensive arrangements with Great Britain and France, into which Soviet Russia may soon be drawn on a formal basis.

"Poland," said the spokesman, "feels that demands for German rights across the Corridor are unjustified by actual German requirements, while they represent a threat to Poland's vital interests."

May Permit Traffic

"Poland is prepared to grant German facilities in the Corridor for transit of German traffic, but will resist by all means in her power any attempt to create a fait accompli regarding this territory."

(The right of way sought by Germany would link the great bulk of the Reich with East Prussia, from which it is now separated by the Polish Corridor.)

As for Danzig, Polish quarters reiterated willingness to eliminate the nominal League of Nations administrative supervision and substitute joint German-Polish governmental control.

But it was stressed that any coup inside or outside the free city designed to bring Danzig under Nazi sovereignty will result in speedy Polish military action.

Hungarians Visit Adolf

BERLIN, April 29—Quickly following up his Reichstag speech with political action to cement Germany's friendships, Chancellor Adolf Hitler concentrated today on securing Hungary in the spreading German orbit.

The Fuehrer, who yesterday turned down President Roosevelt's peace proposals and denounced the Anglo-German naval and German-Polish non-aggression agreements, moved swiftly to form a "ring of political friendship" around the Reich in opposition to what he regards as Anglo-French efforts to encircle Germany with potential foes.

Hitler prepared to receive Hungary's two chief diplomats, Premier Count Paul Teleki and Foreign Minister Count Stephen Casky, who are arriving for a visit of several days.

MR. VAL GOODMAN UPSETS CUBS WITH 'MERRIWELL' BLOW IN NINTH

ONE TOSS COSTS BILL LEE GAME IN CINCINNATI

Redlegs Trail 4 To 6 As Final Session Begins, But Win 7 To 6

NEW YORK, April 29—One of the rarest feats in baseball is for a pitcher to win or lose a game on one pitched ball.

Years ago Eddie Rommel, then the mainstay of the Athletics' pitching corps, and now an American league umpire, was credited with a victory after pitching only one ball.

He came in as a relief pitcher and retired the side by throwing one ball which the batter hit into a double play. The A's then came in to score and win and Rommel got the credit.

And even further back I recall seeing Martin, a pitcher for the Cubs, called in from the Polo Grounds bullpen to pitch the last half of the tenth inning against the Giants, then led by the late John McGraw.

Martin threw one ball to Earl Smith, the Giants' catcher and "oil" promptly shot it up into the stands for a homer winning the game. Martin, of course, was charged with the defeat.

One Pitch Vital
And today the Cincinnati Reds are where most fans expect they'll finish the season—in first place—and Bill Lee, ace of the Cubs' staff, has suffered his first defeat, all because of one pitch.

Lee came into the game in the last half of the ninth yesterday with the Cubs leading by two runs and with two Reds on base. Lee threw one ball to Ival Gooden and the Red outfielder promptly slammed it into the bleachers, winning the ball game, 7 to 6.

The two men on base are charged up to Jack Russell who put them there but the game-winning homer and the defeat is charged to Lee.

The Reds went into first place in the race.
That was Goodman's third homer of the young season and puts him in a tie with Hank Greenberg of the Tigers for home run honors.

In the general astonishment of seeing the Phillies in the first division, the fine work of Fred Haney and his St. Louis Browns has been overlooked. Will Fred and his gang please step up and take a bow?

The Browns are riding high in third place today by virtue of a 9-8 decision over the Indians who have now dropped three in a row.

Haney's hopefulness have been hitting hard and if they could only get enough pitching they would be serious contenders for a first division berth.

Inclement weather prevented all the other scheduled games.

ABRAMS BEATS BALSAMO

NEW YORK, April 29—George Abrams, of Washington, today had climbed a step higher on the middleweight ladder and the comeback hopes of Harry Balsamo, hard-punching New Yorker, were all but blasted as a result of their clash here last night in a thrilling and vicious eight-round battle. Abrams won every round.

Galento's Blunders May Take Edge Off Louis Go

NEW YORK, April 29—Tony Galento's blundering efforts to obtain for himself some publicity and some cash by way of capitalizing on his eminence as challenger for the world heavyweight championship have produced results in three directions, including one not counted on at the beginning. In order, he has been getting the publicity, but most of it has been bad; he has made money, but it has aggregated scarcely more than small change, thirdly, and this is the one he didn't think up himself, his antics probably have backfired against his fight with Joe Louis on June 28.

A red hot potential million dollar spectacle is getting colder by the minute.

There was some justifiable doubt all along as to whether Galento was and is a bona fide contender, and everything that he has done lately has served to heighten suspicion and wet down what at one time was considerable enthusiasm among eastern fans.

The league will not play a split season, but will engage in three rounds, a total of 15 games. All players must be residents of Pickaway county. Cost for entering the league is $15 a team, $5 as an entry fee and $10 for purchase of balls and other equipment.

Teams will be limited to 15 players, all names to be submitted prior to the first game. Friday evening's meeting was held in the Coca Cola bottling works plant. Another session is scheduled next Thursday.

GOVERNOR HEIL LEADS 10-PIN TEAM TO A. B. C.
CLEVELAND, April 29—Chaperoned by their sponsor, Julius P. Heil, governor of Wisconsin, the veteran Milwaukee Heil Quality products captained by one of the all-time greats of the ten-pin world, Hank Marino, and the Heil Juniors featuring Ned Day, current national all-events champion, will try to dethrone the front-running Detroit Life Electric in the American Bowling Congress championships here tonight.

They face heavy odds as the 31st series, third all-time high in the pin classics, grows larger each day with the title parade entering its last week of five-man firing.

Detroit's Stroth Bohemians, Cleveland's Linz Recreation, St. Louis Say-It-With-Flowers and many other highly rated teams the last few nights have found it difficult to join the 77 teams in the 2900 range not to mention the 13 in the 3,000-up bracket.

Governor Heil has been an enthusiastic bowler for years. His Quality Products team has held the national and international match game titles. The governor is not entered in the five-man event but will roll in the doubles and singles on Sunday afternoon.

The senior quilt gets the call on past performances but the juniors have a potent crew anchored by Ned Day, 27-year-old sensational stylist who captured the national individual match-game title this winter, after Marino had abdicated the throne.

OHIO FURS BRING MANY THOUSANDS INTO STATE

Official reports to the Ohio Conservation division show that furs bought in Ohio and shipped out of the state during the recent open season amounted to a grand total of $770,252.35. Furs sold to manufacturers in Ohio and those sold by farmers who do not need fur dealers' licenses are not included in the total. Authorities agree that the annual catch of furs ran well over a million dollars, while others insist the total is between two and three millions annually.

Conservation Commissioner Don Waters sounds a warning with the declaration that measures must be taken to preserve and replenish seed stock by setting limits or by the establishment of safety zones in propagation areas around muskrat colonies and coon den trees, if this source of income is not to be wiped out. The game management agents of the Conservation Division have been instructed to give the fur situation attention, it is said.

The estimated values of furs sold, represented in the above total are as follows:
Red Fox... 5,364, $ 16,092.00
Grey Fox... 3,573, $ 7,146.00
Mink... 11,586, $ 57,930.00
Muskrat... 678,062, $542,449.60
Opussum... 121,478, $ 30,369.50
Raccoon... 18,398, $ 45,995.00
Skunk... 78,485, $ 66,712.25
Weasel... 14,232, $ 3,558.00

SIX TEAMS JOIN SOFTBALL LOOP; LIGHTS SOUGHT

Information To Be Gained By Visit Of Committee To Chillicothe

Six teams will be enrolled in the Circleville Recreation ball league when it breaks into operation May 15. The games will be played on the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co. field W. Mound street.

The league is hoping to have light installed so games can be played at night and has appointed Raymond Tomlinson and Ray Anderson to visit Chillicothe to seek information about that league's lighting system. Assistance may be sought from the Chamber of Commerce and the electric company. Enthusiasm in favor of lights has become so intense that players on the various teams are considering "chipping into the pot" to help make lighting possible.

Joe Brink, president of the league, said Saturday that teams entered would include a crew backed by Wallace's Bakery and Gilt's Food Market and managed by Ray Anderson; Cooper Oils, Commercial Point, managed by Dallas Williams; Esheelman Feeds, managed by L. E. Coffland; Purina Feeds, managed by Raymond Tomlinson; Fenton Cleaners, managed by Clarence Radcliff; Bronzville Jollies, managed by Lester Harris.

The league will not play a split season, but will engage in three rounds, a total of 15 games. All players must be residents of Pickaway county. Cost for entering the league is $15 a team, $5 as an entry fee and $10 for purchase of balls and other equipment.

RED BIRDS FAIL, 5-3, AS BROWN PROVES STRONG

COLUMBUS, April 29—The Columbus Red Birds were in sixth place in the American association race today afternoon dropping the final game of their three game series to St. Paul at St. Paul, yesterday 5 to 3.

Lloyd Brown, veteran Saints' pitcher, allowed only six hits, outclassing three Columbus pitchers. Norman Kleinke, Stan Todd and "Lefty" Turner.

Playing at home, Minneapolis, the association leader, nosed out Toledo 3 to 2 to make a clean sweep of its three-game series. That made five straight wins for the Millers.

Results of other games in the circuit were: Milwaukee 5, Indianapolis 0; Kansas City 3, Louisville 2.

CAPITAL TRACK SQUAD VICTOR IN KENYON TILT

COLUMBUS, April 29—Capital university chalked up its second Ohio Conference track victory today after defeating Kenyon College 83-48 in meet here. Bob Lundberg of the Lutheran team starred by winning the 400, 880 and the discus and placing in the javelin throw. The Kenyon star was Olind, who won the javelin throw and placed in the shot put, discus and low hurdles.

Johnstown has appeared in two races and covered himself with glory each time. In his last outing, over the Wood Memorial distance of one mile and 70 yards, the Belair Stud racer hung up a new track record of 1:40 4-5.

Impound, which finished second to Gilded Knight in the Chesapeake last week, may trouble both Johnstown and El Chico no little.

Fly, Bait Casters Asked To Join Organization

Fly and bait casters who are faced with a slack period in their pastime due to the closing of the black bass season from midnight Sunday until June 16 will have an opportunity to keep in practice.

All fishermen of Circleville and community interested in either fly or bait casting are invited to attend a meeting in The Circleville

Herald office at 8 p. m. Monday when arrangements will be worked out for organization of a casting club. The group will hold an election of officers and work out club policies.

The pool at the Pickaway county home will be used for casting practice and events. Permission to use the pool has been granted by H. E. Mowery, superintendent of the county home.

Purpose of the club is to provide anglers a place to practice casting. All anglers, regardless of skill in casting, are invited to attend the meeting.

Clarence Francis, county conservation officer, said Saturday that county streams are in fair condition for fishing Sunday. Some are still swollen due to the recent heavy rains.

DRAKE RELAYS MAY SEE MORE RECORDS BROKEN

DES MOINES, Ia., April 29—One national collegiate mark and two meet records lay trampled under foot today as 2,000 of the nation's crack athletes warmed up for the finals of the thirtieth annual renewal of the Drake relay carnival.

The opening of the two-day program yesterday saw Gregory Rice, powerful Notre Dame runner, pound out a new collegiate record in the two-mile run against slight competition.

His time of 9:10 clipped six-tenths of a second from the mark hung up by Don Lash on the same track two years ago.

Edsel Wibbels of Nebraska cast his shadow over the old discus record by the narrowest of margins. His toss of 158.29 feet barely covered 158 feet, three inches credited to Tom Jark of the U. S. Military academy ten years ago.

Rice Institute's sprint medley relay team completed the sharp-shooting at the session by shaving one-fifth of a second from the distance in 3:21.1.

The race staged by Rice in the two-mile event was the outstanding performance of the day. If pushed, it appeared he might easily have lowered his time by seconds.

JAMAICA TRACK TO SEE FEATURE DERBY WARMUP

JAMAICA RACE TRACK, N. Y., April 29—William Woodward's Johnstown, early season sensation of the nation's three-year-olds, will meet up with his first severe test today when he faces eight other crack colts in the $20,000 added Wood Memorial at Jamaica.

By his showing will be determined Johnstown's odds in the Kentucky Derby next week. Should he win, the fleet son of Jamestown in all probability will go to Churchill Downs a prohibitive choice to win America's prize racing classic.

But before he leaves for the Bluegrass country, Johnstown today will have to hurdle El Chico, Voltant, Eight Thirty, T. M. Dorsett, Impound and Lovely Night, among others.

Despite a defeat at the hands of Gilded Knight two weeks ago, El Chico, unbeaten two-year-old champion of 1938, still has many followers.

MARVAL GOODMAN UPSETS CUBS WITH 'MERRIWELL' BLOW IN NINTH

ONE TOSS COSTS BILL LEE GAME IN CINCINNATI

Redlegs Trail 4 To 6 As Final Session Begins, But Win 7 To 6

NEW YORK, April 29—One of the rarest feats in baseball is for a pitcher to win or lose a game on one pitched ball.

Years ago Eddie Rommel, then the mainstay of the Athletics' pitching corps, and now an American league umpire, was credited with a victory after pitching only one ball.

He came in as a relief pitcher and retired the side by throwing one ball which the batter hit into a double play. The A's then came in to score and win and Rommel got the credit.

And even further back I recall seeing Martin, a pitcher for the Cubs, called in from the Polo Grounds bullpen to pitch the last half of the tenth inning against the Giants, then led by the late John McGraw.

Martin threw one ball to Earl Smith, the Giants' catcher and "oil" promptly shot it up into the stands for a homer winning the game. Martin, of course, was charged with the defeat.

One Pitch Vial

And today the Cincinnati Reds are where most fans expect they'll finish the season—in first place—and Bill Lee, ace of the Cubs' staff, has suffered his first defeat, all because of one pitch.

Lee came into the game in the last half of the ninth yesterday with the Cubs leading by two runs and with two Reds on base. Lee threw one ball to Ival Goodman and the Red outfielder promptly slammed it into the bleachers, winning the ball game, 7 to 6.

The two men on base are charged up to Jack Russell who put them there but the game-winning homer and the defeat is charged to Lee.

The Reds went into first place in the race.

That was Goodman's third homer of the young season and puts him in a tie with Hank Greenberg of the Tigers for home run honors.

In the general astonishment of seeing the Phillies in the first division, the fine work of Fred Haney and his St. Louis Browns has been overlooked. Will Fred and his gang please step up and take a bow?

The Browns are riding high in third place today by virtue of a 9-8 decision over the Indians who have now dropped three in a row.

Haney's hopefulness have been hitting hard and if they could only get enough pitching for a first division berth.

Inclement weather prevented all the other scheduled games.

ABRAMS BEATS BALSAMO
NEW YORK, April 29—George Abrams, of Washington, today had climbed a step higher on the middleweight ladder and the comeback hopes of Harry Balsamo, hard-punching New Yorker, were all but blasted as a result of their clash here last night in a thrilling and vicious eight-round battle. Abrams won every round.

WELL, boys, how does the National league look at this early stage? Oh, you're not talking, eh? At the left is Pie Traynor, manager of Pittsburgh's Pirates. At the right, Gabby Hartnett, manager of the defending champions, the Chicago Cubs.

Galento's Blunders May Take Edge Off Louis Go

By Lawton Carver

NEW YORK, April 29—Tony Galento's blundering efforts to obtain for himself some publicity and some cash by way of capitalizing on his eminence as challenger for the world heavyweight championship have produced results in three directions, including one not counted on at the beginning. In order, he has been getting the publicity, but most of it has been bad; he has made money, but it has aggregated scarcely more than small change, thirdly, and this is the one he didn't think up himself, his antics probably have backfired against his fight with Joe Louis on June 28.

PHILS' MANAGER RATES HONOR AS 'MAN OF WEEK'

By International News Service
A modern miracle worker draws the little brass ring for this week's outstanding figure in the world of sports.

The miracle man, of course, is James Thompson (Doc) Prothro, and his miracle is the conversion of the futile Philadelphia Phillies of the defeatist complex into a fighting aggregation of ball players.

Understand, please, Doc doesn't draw the brass ring because he has the Phillies in the first division today when everybody and his brother expected them to start last and stay there.

He gets it rather because he has injected a winning spirit into ball club that always admitted defeat before it started.

Doc's policy—both domestic and foreign—is simple. Here it is: "My ball club may not be the best in the world but it will give its best efforts to win—not one day—but every day in the year and whether we are last or first. Hustle, battle and never quit—that's us, the Phillies."

Doc was never a great ball player himself but he's always been a wonder handling and developing other players.

SIX TEAMS JOIN SOFTBALL LOOP; LIGHTS SOUGHT

Information To Be Gained By Visit Of Committee To Chillicothe

Six teams will be enrolled in the Circleville Recreation ball league when it breaks into operation May 15. The games will be played on the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co. field W. Mound street.

The league is hoping to have light installed so games can be played at night and has appointed Raymond Tomlinson and Ray Anderson to visit Chillicothe to seek information about that league's lighting system. Assistance may be sought from the Chamber of Commerce and the electric company. Enthusiasm in favor of lights has become so intense that players on the various teams are considering "chipping into the pot" to help make lighting possible.

Joe Brink, president of the league, said Saturday that teams entered would include a crew backed by Wallace's Bakery and Glitt's Food Market and managed by Ray Anderson; Cooper Oils, Commercial Point, managed by Dallas Williams; Eshelman Feeds, managed by L. E. Coffland; Purina Feeds, managed by Raymond Tomlinson; Fenton Cleaners, managed by Clarence Radcliff; Bronzville Jolliers, managed by Lester Harris.

The league will not play a split season, but will engage in three rounds, a total of 15 games. All players must be residents of Pickaway county. Cost for entering the league is $15 a team, $5 as an entry fee and $10 for purchase of balls and other equipment.

Teams will be limited to 15 players, all names to be submitted prior to the first game.

Friday evening's meeting was held in the Coca Cola bottling works plant. Another session is scheduled next Thursday.

GOVERNOR HEIL LEADS 10-PIN TEAM TO A. B. C.

CLEVELAND, April 29—Chaperoned by their sponsor, Julius P. Heil, governor of Wisconsin, the veteran Milwaukee Heil Quality products captained by one of the all-time greats of the ten-pin world, Hank Marino, and the Heil Juniors featuring Ned Day, current national all-events champion, will try to dethrone the front-running Detroit Fife Electrics in the American Bowling Congress championships here tonight. They face heavy odds as the 3151 series, third all-time high in the pin classics, grows larger each day with the title parade entering its last week of five-man firing.

Detroit's Stroth Bohemians, Cleveland's Linz Recreation, St. Louis Say-It-With-Flowers and many other highly rated teams the last few nights have found it difficult to join the 77 teams in the 2900 range not to mention the 13 in the 3,000-up bracket.

Governor Heil has been an enthusiastic bowler for years. His Quality Products team has held the national and international match game titles. The governor is not entered in the five-man event but will roll in the doubles and singles on Sunday afternoon.

The senior quint gets the call on past performances but the juniors have a potent crew anchored by Ned Day, 27-year-old sensational stylist who captured the national individual match-game title this Winter, after Marino had abdicated the throne.

RED BIRDS FAIL, 5-3, AS BROWN PROVES STRONG

COLUMBUS, April 29—The Columbus Red Birds were in sixth place in the American association race today afternoon dropping the final game of their three game series to St. Paul at St. Paul, yesterday 5 to 3.

Lloyd Brown, veteran Saints' pitcher, allowed only six hits, outclassing three Columbus pitchers. Norman Kleine, Stan Todd and "Lefty" Turner.

Playing at home, Minneapolis, the association leader, nosed out Toledo 3 to 2 to make a clean sweep of its three-game series. That made five straight wins for the Millers.

Results of other games in the circuit were: Milwaukee 5, Indianapolis 0; Kansas City 3, Louisville 2.

Fly, Bait Casters Asked To Join Organization

Fly and bait casters who are faced with a slack period in their pastime until the closing of the black bass season from midnight Sunday until June 16 will have an opportunity to keep in practice.

All fishermen of Circleville and community interested in either fly or bait casting are invited to attend a meeting in The Circleville Herald office at 8 p. m. Monday when arrangements will be worked out for organization of a casting club. The group will hold an election of officers and work out club policies.

The pool at the Pickaway county home will be used for casting practice and events. Permission to use the pool has been granted by H. E. Mowery, superintendent of the county home.

Purpose of the club is to provide anglers a place to practice casting. All anglers, regardless of skill in casting, are invited to attend the meeting.

Clarence Francis, county conservation officer, said Saturday that county streams are in fair condition for fishing Sunday. Some are still swollen due to the recent heavy rains.

DRAKE RELAYS MAY SEE MORE RECORDS BROKEN

DES MOINES, Ia., April 29—One national collegiate mark and two meet records lay trampled under foot today as 2,000 of the nation's crack athletes warmed up for the finals of the thirtieth annual renewal of the Drake relay carnival.

The opening of the two-day program yesterday saw Gregory Rice, powerful Notre Dame runner, pound out a new collegiate record in the two-mile run against slight competition.

His time of 9:10 clipped six-tenths of a second from the mark hung up by Don Lash on the same track two years ago.

Edsel Wibbels of Nebraska cast his shadow over the old discus record by the narrowest of margins. His toss of 158.29 feet barely covered 158 feet, three inches credited to Tom Jark of the U. S. Military academy ten years ago.

Rice Institute's sprint medley relay team completed the sharp-shooting at the session by shaving one-fifth of a second from the distance in 3:21.1.

The race staged by Rice in the two-mile event was the outstanding performance of the day. If pushed, it appeared he might easily have lowered his time by seconds.

JAMAICA TRACK TO SEE FEATURE DERBY WARMUP

JAMAICA RACE TRACK, N. Y., April 29—William Woodward's Johnstown, early season sensation of the nation's three-year-olds, will meet up with his first severe test today when he faces eight other crack colts in the $20,000 added Wood Memorial at Jamaica.

By his showing will be determined Johnstown's odds in the Kentucky Derby next week. Should he win, the fleet son of Jamestown in all probability will go to Churchill Downs a prohibitive choice to win America's prize racing classic.

But before he leaves for the Bluegrass country, Johnstown today will have to hurdle El Chico, Volitant, Eight Thirty, T. M. Dorsett, Impound and Lovely Night, among others.

Despite a defeat at the hands of Gilded Knight two weeks ago, El Chico, unbeaten two-year-old champion of 1935, still has many followers.

Johnstown has appeared in two races and covered himself with glory each time. In his last outing, over the Wood Memorial distance of one mile and 70 yards, the Belair Stud racer hung up a new track record of 1:40 4-5.

Impound, which finished second to Gilded Knight in the Chesapeake last week, may trouble both Johnstown and El Chico no little.

RED CROSS TO CONDUCT W. P. A. FIRST AID COURSE

Pickaway county chapter of the American Red Cross will sponsor a course in first aid for the employees of W. P. A. beginning May 2. Frank A. Smith, of Chillicothe, a certified instructor for Ross and Pickaway county, will be the instructor.

Classes will be held every Tuesday and Friday afternoons and evenings for five weeks. Afternoon classes will be held in the recreation center, S. Washington street, from 12:20 to 2:30 p. m. Evening classes will be held in Memorial hall from 7:30 to 9:30 p. m. The classes in Memorial hall will be in the Red Cross headquarters.

4-H CLUB NEWS

Two new members were added to the Walnut 4-H livestock club, Friday night, at a meeting held in the township school. The new members are Gene Marshall and Maynard Marshall. The club now has a membership of seven boys. Ben Nothstine is leader. Gene Marshall was named recreation leader. The next meeting of the club will be held May 19 in the Nothstine home.

LUTHER LEAGUES TO GATHER FOR CONFERENCE AT MARCY CHURCH

50 Members To Attend From City

Medical Missionary To Talk; Circleville Seeks Session In September

Luther League members of Trinity Lutheran church will go to Marcy Lutheran church, Sunday afternoon, to take part in the convention of the Scioto Hocking Valley Luther League association.

Trinity League members are to meet in the parish house at 2 p. m. to make the trip. It is planned to have a delegation of about 50.

The business session, to include the election of officers, will be in charge of the association president, Clarence Reinhard, of Canal Winchester.

Principal address of the convention will be given by Dr. Floyd Kautzer, medical missionary at the head of the Lutheran hospital at Renigunta, India. Dr. Kautzer, who is now on a furlough at his home in Columbus, has served in this hospital for the natives for 11 years.

A musical program will be provided by the Circleville and Canal Winchester league. Miss Roma Melvin and Miss Ruth Eppard have been chosen to represent the Circleville church in a Bible quiz contest between the seven leagues of the association.

Miss Vesta Stevens, teacher in the Lutheran Negro mission school in Anniston, Ala., will be a guest at the meeting. She will speak briefly on her work.

An invitation has been extended to the association to hold a meeting in Circleville next September.

METHODISTS PLAN DINNER NEXT WEDNESDAY EVENING

A fellowship dinner will be held in the social rooms of First Methodist church on Wednesday evening, May 3. A covered dish supper will be served under the direction of the Ladies Aid. A short program will be given. Pledges will be received for meeting the expense of redecorating the church amounting to about $1,500.

105 HAVE PERFECT MARKS

The list of persons having a perfect attendance record for the first quarter of the year in the Sunday school of Trinity Lutheran church was boosted to 105 Saturday. The Rev. G. L. Troutman announced names inadvertently omitted from the list announced last week included Jimmy Bartholomew, Ronald Melvin, Donald Mancini, Nancy Boggs and Mrs. H. F. Gall.

Paul Crosses Into Europe

A vision appeared unto Paul in the night, a man of Macedonia, who prayed him, saying, "Come over into Macedonia and help us."

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Acts 15:36 to 17:15.

By Alfred J. Buescher

In Macedonia a meeting was held on the river bank, and a woman named Lydia came to it and was baptized with all her household.

By casting a spirit out of a girl who earned money by soothsaying, the apostles made enemies and were thrown into prison.

Presbyterian Church Has Conclave in Cleveland

CLEVELAND, April 29—Matters ranging from world politics to such church business as pastors' pensions will be discussed, fought over and acted upon by the 151st General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church when it meets in Cleveland for a full week, starting May 25.

The assembly will attract approximately 1,000 commissioners, half clergy and half lay, elected proportionately by presbyteries throughout the United States. Presiding when the assembly opens will be Rev. Charles Whitefield Welch of Louisville, Moderator of the church. A successor to Dr. Welch will be named in the early sessions, as Moderators serve only one-year terms.

The much discussed question of church union will be brought up in several forms. There will be preliminary talks on merger with the Episcopal Church and with the Presbyterian Church in the United States (Southern). Already union committees from the three churches have held meetings, but it will be several years before any proposal can be made concrete enough

50 Members To Attend From City

Medical Missionary To Talk; Circleville Seeks Session In September

Luther League members of Trinity Lutheran church will go to Marcy Lutheran church, Sunday afternoon, to take part in the convention of the Scioto Hocking Valley Luther League association.

Trinity League members are to meet in the parish house at 2 p. m. to make the trip. It is planned to have a delegation of about 50.

The business session, to include the election of officers, will be in charge of the association president, Clarence Reinhard, of Canal Winchester.

Principal address of the convention will be given by Dr. Floyd Kautzer, medical missionary at the head of the Lutheran hospital at Renigunta, India. Dr. Kautzer, who is now on a furlough at his home in Columbus, has served in this hospital for the natives for 11 years.

A musical program will be provided by the Circleville and Canal Winchester league. Miss Roma Melvin and Miss Ruth Eppard have been chosen to represent the Circleville church in a Bible quiz contest between the seven leagues of the association.

Miss Vesta Stevens, teacher in the Lutheran Negro mission school in Anniston, Ala., will be a guest at the meeting. She will speak briefly on her work.

An invitation has been extended to the association to hold a meeting in Circleville next September.

Paul Crosses Into Europe

A vision appeared unto Paul in the night, a man of Macedonia, who prayed him, saying, "Come over into Macedonia and help us."

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Acts 15:36 to 17:15.

By Alfred J. Buescher

In Macedonia a meeting was held on the river bank, and a woman named Lydia came to it and was baptized with all her household.

By casting a spirit out of a girl who earned money by soothsaying, the apostles made enemies and were thrown into prison.

An earthquake opened prison doors, but Paul and Silas insisted those who had condemned them should lead them out. (GOLDEN TEXT—Acts 16:10.)

In the official business of the assembly will be the reports of the four main committees in the church—the boards of foreign missions, pensions, Christian education and national missions.

The church has a pension fund of more than $40,000,000, and last year spent approximately $2,000,000 for pensions. Budget of the Foreign Missions Board is approximately $3,000,000, per year spent in support of 1,500 missionaries and their native helpers.

The Christian Education Committee, with an annual budget of $800,000, aids in the support of colleges and schools connected with the church, while the national missions board spends approximately $3,000 annually in evangelistic work.

The assembly will be held in the Euclid Avenue Baptist Church, as there is no Presbyterian Church large enough near Cleveland's downtown section.

SELF-SUFFICIENCY
IT is right for nations, like men, to seek self-sufficiency. And there is something admirable in the effort. It tends to develop sturdy independence of methods and spirit. Yet this is an ideal which can never be completely realized, and shouldn't be if it could.

Secretary of State Hull points out that there is a fallacy in the very term "economic self-sufficiency", because it leads to "a disastrous decline in the level of satisfaction of people's wants."

It would probably be less disastrous in the case of the United States than of most other countries, because our land is so large and rich and so varied in its resources, and we have so many different kinds of people who can produce so many different things. Yet we are not a self-contained nation, economically or otherwise, and would be short-sighted if we went to fanatical extremes in trying to be so.

The world normally tends toward economic unity as well as cultural unity, in spite of boundaries and racial and political differences. Modern facilities for travel and communication make it so. How can there be isolation and remoteness when a little community in the middle of the Pacific Ocean, or in the Arctic wastes, can know from day to day what is going on throughout the world?

POLITICAL CANDY BARS
HERE'S another thing that must tickle Will Rogers if, looking down from "the gold bar of heaven", he can still glimpse the goings-on in his beloved "Cuckoo Land."

In the last local election at Springfield, Ill., Sheriff Harry Eielson's daughter, aged nine, promised that if her father was elected he would "give a candy bar to every kid in Sangamon County."

Well, Father was elected. And being a man of his word, and also of his daughter's word, he started out to make good. After visiting 203 schools, and traveling 2,300 miles to do it, and distributing 16,390 candy bars, his conscience is satisfied.

Very likely, too, he has so ingratiated himself with the children and the mothers of the rising generation that he may be able to continue in office for life.

Now, the reader may ask, what has such procedure to do with a sheriff's qualifications or duties? But why bring that up?

Now apparently Russia wants to save the world for democracy.

How come the Executive Department at Washington is reorganized without Father Coughlin doing a Paul Revere?

A good speech from the German point of view, but undoubtedly conceived for home consumption. Those are the type of speeches that fan the fire of patriotism and stir hatreds. According to Adolf the democracies are intent on crushing Germany, and the Germans stand with their backs to the wall. Well, maybe so, but I doubt it, because I see nothing in the attitude of the democracies that indicates their intention of starting a war.

Germans now believe that the World War was forced on them and that theirs was a defensive fight. The victorious Allies took from Germany certain territories in small part payment for the cost of war. I am one who believes that what the Allies took is mighty little indeed in comparison with what Germany would have taken had she won. Now, Germany demands the return of her losses. Unless she is repaid she intends fighting. She is a mighty nation and has thrown a great fear into England, France, et al. The way I see it, no nations except the totalitarian ones are desirous of war. England and France, however, do not intend being dictated to by Hitler or Mussolini. We can understand that attitude.

There was a different Englishman than the one appearing at Munich. He minced no words in declaring that England does not wish war and that if war comes it will be forced by the ambitions of Hitler. Really a firmer stand than I had expected ever would be taken by Chamberlain.

In the evening at 7:30 did tune the radio on London and listened to a discussion of the Hitler speech by an English newspaperman. He also was of the opinion that Hitler's speech was for home consumption and that so far as the present situation is concerned it would have little effect one way or another.

That nightly English news broadcast is of great interest to me, particularly in these troubled times. British broadcasts seem to have no absolute set times such as ours. The news starts sometime between 7:30 and 8 p. m. and on the short waves. Last night's program, for instance, got under way almost promptly at 7:30. But tonight it may not start until shortly before 8. I also sometimes listen to the news broadcast out of Rome, but a woman is the speaker there and her voice is most unsuited to my ears.

I find little if any sympathy locally for Germany, but know only a man of two who is sufficiently angry to advocate war. All the rest of us wish peace. Personally, I think the best way to assure our personal peace is to keep our noses out of European affairs. Seems to me that somewhere I have heard something to the effect that the peacemaker frequently is injured.

BRITAIN NEEDS U. S. SUPPORT

WASHINGTON—Two years ago the Marquess of Lothian rose in the House of Lords and made a statement which caused his fellow lords to sit bolt upright in their seats.

"Britain," he said, "could not have emerged a victor from the World War except for the assistance from the United States before and after her entrance."

In England, where the belittling of the A. E. F. is illustrated by the reference to the Rainbow Division as "the one which came after the storm", this was almost a revolutionary statement. The fact that the man who made it now is coming to the United States as Ambassador is the most significant move in Anglo-American relations in a decade.

It means that Britain now considers the support of the United States as important as it did when the A. E. F. brought cheer to the desperately fighting Allies in 1917.

TAX POOR

The new Ambassador is a wealthy bachelor of 57 with more titles than he can write on a calling card. Once he was known merely as Philip Henry Kerr (pronounced Car), wartime secretary to Lloyd George. Then he succeeded to the title and estates (30,000 acres) of his cousin, and became Marquess of Lothian, Earl of Ancrum, Baron Long-Newton and Dolphinstown, Viscount of Brien, Baron Kerr of Newbattle, Baron Jedburgh in Scotland, Baron Ker of Kersheugh in the United Kingdom, and a few other things.

Although his is one of the richest families in England, having inherited South African gold mines, the Marquess has more acres than guineas; for the inheritance taxes imposed upon him when he came into the property were more than he could bear and he has not yet paid them off. Since the property was entailed he was unable to sell any of it to meet the tax bill, and was forced to sell instead some of its historic treasures and furnishings.

Lothian did not, however, sell the baptismal font at which Mary, Queen of Scots was baptized, or the saddle of Robert Bruce, famous King of Scotland in 1306. Lothian's own family dates back to 1357.

EMPIRE SALESMAN

Lothian's coming to Washington is expected to bring a marked change in the management of British affairs in the U. S. A. Sir Ronald Lindsay, who retires as Ambassador, was conservative, shy and timid about traveling around the country for fear he would be accused of spreading British propaganda. Once a newspaperman asked Sid Wilmott Lewis of The London Times if the Ambassador could not receive newspapermen at the Embassy, and the reply was negative. Lindsay did not want to appear to be proselyting the press.

Lord Lothian, on the other hand, is intimately acquainted with the United States, may be expected to move about the country as he has done in the past. He has been a regular visitor as secretary (Continued on Page Six)

Experts Can't Agree on Tooth Decay

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE DENTAL profession is making a serious effort to determine the best way of attacking the problem of the high prevalence of disease of the teeth among school children.

Progress has been slow because there is no general agreement about the cause of tooth decay. Investigators have reported a number of factors, i. e., heredity, nutrition, calcium phosphate deficiency, the work of the glands of internal secretion, the reaction of the saliva and the operation of bacteria in the mouth.

Of these, nutrition and its association with calcium phosphate deficiency have received the greatest amount of attention. Research into the part that calcium phosphate deficiency and vitamin D deficiency play in causing dental caries closely parallels the investigations that have been made in the cause and treatment of rickets.

Prevent Rickets

There is little doubt that calcium phosphate and vitamin D play an important part in the prevention and treatment of rickets. Since rickets is a disease of the bones, and since the teeth can be regarded as skeletal structures, there is a natural reason to believe that whatever will prevent or cure rickets will also act favorably on the teeth.

In attempting to take advantage of this knowledge, it is logical to assume that the diet of the expectant mother would have considerable influence on the development of the teeth of the child. The deciduous, or temporary, teeth begin to develop in the third or fourth month of life inside the mother. The crowns of all the deciduous teeth are formed before birth. And, according to authoritative research, the growth of the permanent teeth is determined by the nature of the growth of the temporary teeth.

No Superstition

"For every child a tooth" is an old saw, and not a piece of superstition by any means. A prenatal diet that is rich in calcium will lower the incidence of dental decay in expectant mothers as well as in the children. Whether calcium in sufficient quantities can be obtained in an average diet or whether the diet should be fortified with calcium chloride and calcium lactate is a matter for the attending physician to decide.

Certainly from what we know, it seems reasonable that the expectant mother should have an excess of calcium-containing foods, such as milk and green vegetables, and also an excess of vitamin D, in the form of cod-liver oil, in order to preserve good teeth in the infant.

MARIE BLIZARD

READ THIS FIRST:
Phil Parrish, New York reporter, is old-fashioned enough to believe that his wife's place is in the home, with their new-born baby, Jessica. Eleanor, who met Phil on a small town newspaper, has had aspirations to do some kind of writing and supplement Phil's modest salary. Consequently, when Eleanor completes a novel she has written surreptitiously, while her husband was working nights, then gives it to him to read. Phil goes off alone on a modest spree. After many hours he returns.
(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER TWENTY

WHEN Eleanor Parrish put out her hand to stop her husband from saying whatever he had brought her there to say, she was experiencing an emotion that later she never was to own to.

In that moment every line in his face, the set of his lean jaw, the slight stoop of his shoulders, was immeasurably dear to her, dearer, perhaps, because she was afraid it was no longer her man that she saw.

He said: "It's about your novel." She closed her eyes for a moment. After a little, she said, in a humble voice: "What did you think of it, Phil?"

"I guess you're going to be a writer," he said.

She waited.

"It's not great. It's not magnificent. It isn't even very original."

"But it got something."

"Thank you," she said with a slight edge in her voice.

"Your characterizations are amazingly well done for a first effort."

"Did you like them?" she asked eagerly.

He nodded. "You're pretty flowery, but you can discipline that. The important thing is that you understand your people—which surprises me—and you've got a good yarn. I can point out a lot of things that you've got to learn, but I know you can learn. Your Gagliardi family is a nice set of word portraits."

Eleanor's breath came faster. She was tasting the first sweet praise so necessary to a creator. "You'll help me, Phil? I will do whatever you say. I'll throw out the things you think are unnecessary. Maybe I'll throw out that whole story. I've another one in mind that I'm itching to do . . ."

He smiled a twisted, dry smile. "You can't throw that one out, Nell."

"Why can't I? It's mine and I don't want anyone to see anything that isn't good work."

"It's sold, Nell."

"Sold?" Surprise and pleasure mingled in the one word. And a kind of wonder.

"I took it to George Brooks, fiction editor of our syndicate, yesterday. I pointed out the yarn and wrote a quick synopsis. He read it and told me today that he would take it."

"Does he like it?" She whispered because there was awe in her voice.

"Sure," Phil didn't tell her that Brooks had said: "Well, old man, I guess I'll do. I'll have to do a lot of cutting, but I will give it a chance. We haven't got our fall list up full."

"Oh, Phil, I can't believe it. Now I'm really going to write!"

He said: "Yeah, I guess you are."

She touched his hand timidly. "Aren't you happy about it, darling?"

"I'm grinning, with somber eyes."

"Sure I am. Didn't I tell you once that anything that made you happy makes me happy, too?"

"But you don't look very happy about it."

He managed a pretty good smile then.

"You ought to start again on your book, Phil. When I get paid,

"Does he like it?" She whispered because there was awe in her voice.

"I'll get another typewriter and then we'll both work. It will be something more we'll share."

Phil rubbed his cheek with a nervous gesture that was new to him. "We can't fool ourselves, Nell. That book won't ever be written, I guess."

"Nonsense!" she said, heartily, the way she spoke to Jessica when the baby fell down and hurt herself.

Phil thought of it:

"See, pet, you aren't really hurt! You've only got a scratched knee. But the did sidewalk has a big spot on it where you fell. We'll have a cookie and forget all about it."

"I guess I'll have to take my cookie and forget about it," he said, speaking his thoughts aloud.

"Whatever are you talking about?" she asked, laughing.

"Maybe I'd better tell you. You're a smart girl, so maybe you already know what kind of a man you're married to."

"I do," she said proudly. "I'm married to a man who is dear and sweet, and wise and kind . . ."

"And we'll always be good friends," he finished.

"You're trying to be dramatic. I was going to end by saying . . ."

"The only man I'll ever want to be married to."

"I'd kiss you, Nell, except that it isn't quite proper to kiss a girl in the park when you're married to her."

"When I was listing your virtues, I forgot to mention that sense of humor that charms me."

All her gaiety could not erase the purpose from his face. "The sense of humor that you mention, and the charm which you have been so kind as to mention before, Nell, are practically my only attributes. I'm pretty serious about this."

"About what?"

"Things that you've got to know."

Eleanor laughed until the tears came to her eyes. "Oh, Phil, you idiot! After being married to you for over two years, are you going to tell me what you're really like? That's funny! I know that you always wear down one side of your toothbrush, and I know everything you like to eat, and that no power on earth can make you unbitten a button without practically tearing it out. I know . . ."

"Do you know that you're going places and that I'm always going to be a good—not a great—reporter? And that I'm an easy-going chap with plenty of ambition but no industry? And that I would be happy all my life to putter around doing what I like to do on assignments and, perhaps, having a garden some day?"

"What's wrong with that?" she asked stouly.

"Two people in harness, my dear girl, travel better when they travel the same pace."

"But don't we? Or did you think I was planning to hire a footman tomorrow?"

"I've got a hunch that some day you may be up in the big money brackets. Where do you think I'll be then?"

"With me—all my life, I hope."

Surprisingly, he said nothing. His eyes lingered on her face for a few moments, then moved off to the horizon.

Eleanor felt a swift sense of fear again.

She said: "Phil, you wouldn't ever let anything—your success or my success, or other men, or other women—come between us, would you?"

He smiled at her. His smile was sweet, a little like Jessica's.

"I have two words," she said at last when he didn't speak. "There's the world I've just found for myself and that is important. I've felt like a new person. But there is another world. OUR world. I don't want it to ever be any different."

"Money and success do things to people," he murmured.

"Not to us! Don't you see, Phil, it will always be US. I couldn't have written that story if it hadn't been for you." Even as she was saying it, she didn't know why she was, because Phil had not contributed anything she could put her finger on. "I need you, darling. I'll always need you. And I don't need anyone else in the world. I am thoroughly an individual—except where you're concerned."

He said: "Come along, Nell. We haven't broken the news to Jessica yet that her ma's a published author."

Eleanor felt that there were unsaid things between them that she would have to try to understand some day.

Today's Horoscope

Today's birthday child will have excellent fortunes during the year just commencing. Great gain will come through the medium of a stranger, a lucky speculation, or through military folk. The child born on this date may be assured of success. He will be clever, and original, with sound judgment, although very observant and critical. He will also be systematic, methodical and intuitive.

Hints on Etiquette

When a friend offers to call for you at a certain time, don't keep him or her waiting. Be ready when the time comes.

Horoscope For Sunday

Moderate fortune is assured throughout the coming year for those whose birthday is today. Close supervision of expenditures is, however, advised. Clever and imaginative children will be born today. External appearances will influence them unduly, however, and they will be inclined to attach more importance to outward show than to true worth of character. Those who train them should strive to overcome this tendency.

Experts Can't Agree on Tooth Decay

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE DENTAL profession is making a serious effort to determine the best way of attacking the problem of the high prevalence of disease of the teeth among school children.

Progress has been slow because there is no general agreement about the cause of tooth decay. Investigators have reported a number of factors, i. e., heredity, nutrition, calcium phosphate deficiency, the work of the glands of internal secretion, the reaction of the saliva and the operation of bacteria in the mouth.

Of these, nutrition and its association with calcium phosphate deficiency have received the greatest amount of attention. Research into the part that calcium phosphate deficiency and vitamin D deficiency play in causing dental caries closely parallels the investigations that have been made in the cause and treatment of rickets.

There is little doubt that calcium phosphate and vitamin D play an important part in the prevention and treatment of rickets. Since rickets is a disease of the bones, and since the teeth can be regarded as skeletal structures, there is a natural reason to believe that what-over will prevent or cure rickets will also act favorably on the teeth.

In attempting to take advantage of this knowledge, it is logical to assume that the diet of the expectant mother would have considerable influence on the development of the teeth of the child. The deciduous, or temporary, teeth begin to develop in the third or fourth month of life inside the mother. The crowns of all the deciduous teeth are formed before birth. And, according to authoritative research, the growth of the permanent teeth is determined by the nature of the growth of the temporary teeth.

No Superstition

"For every child a tooth" is an old saw, and not a piece of superstition by any means. A prenatal diet that is rich in calcium will lower the incidence of dental decay in expectant mothers as well as in the children. Whether calcium in sufficient quantities can be obtained in an average diet or whether the diet should be fortified with calcium chloride and calcium lactate is a matter for the attending physician to decide.

Certainly from what we know, it seems reasonable that the expectant mother should have an excess of calcium-containing foods, such as milk and green vegetables, and also an excess of vitamin D, in the form of cod-liver oil, in order to preserve good teeth in the infant.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clending has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clending, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

By MARIE BLIZARD

READ THIS FIRST:
Phil Parrish, New York reporter, is old-fashioned enough to believe that his wife's place is in the home, with their new-born baby, Jessica. Eleanor, who met Phil on a small town newspaper, has had aspirations to do some kind of writing and supplement Phil's modest salary. Consequently, when Eleanor computes a novel she has written surreptitiously, while her husband was working nights, then gives it to him to read. Phil goes off alone on a modest spree. After many hours he returns.
(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER TWENTY

When Eleanor Parrish put out her hand to stop her husband from saying whatever he had brought her there to say, she was experiencing an emotion that later she never was to own to.

In that moment every line in his face, the set of his lean jaw, the slight stoop of his shoulders, was immeasurably dear to her, dearer, perhaps, because she was afraid it was no longer her man that she saw.

He said: "It's about your novel." She closed her eyes for a moment. After a little, she said, in a humble voice: "What did you think of it, Phil?"

"I guess you're going to be a writer," he said.

She waited. "It's not great. It's not magnificent. It isn't even very original . . . but it's got something."

"Thank you," she said with a slight edge in her voice.

"Your characterizations are amazingly well done for a first effort."

"Did you like them?" she asked eagerly.

He nodded. "You're pretty flowery, but you can discipline that. The important thing is that you understand your people—which surprises me—and you've got a good yarn. I can point out a lot of things that you've got to learn, but I know you can learn. Your Gagliardi family is a nice set of word portraits."

Eleanor's breath came faster. She was tasting the first sweet praise so necessary to a creator. "You'll help me, Phil? I will do whatever you say. I'll throw out the things you think are unnecessary. Maybe I'll throw out that whole story. I've another one in mind that I'm itching to do . . ."

He smiled a twisted, dry smile. "You can't throw that one out, Nell."

"Why can't I? It's mine and I don't want anyone to see anything that isn't good work."

"It's sold, Nell."

"Sold!" Surprise and pleasure mingled in the one word. And a kind of wonder.

"I took it to George Brooks, fiction editor of our syndicate, yesterday. I pointed out the yarn and wrote a quick synopsis. He read it and told me today that he would take it."

"Does he like it?" She whispered because there was awe in her voice. "Sure," Phil didn't tell her that Brooks had said: "Well, old man, I guess it'll do. I'll have to do a lot of cutting, but I will give it a chance. We haven't got our fall list up full."

"Oh, Phil, I can't believe it. Now I'm really going to write!"

He said: "Yeah, I guess you are." She touched his hand timidly. "Aren't you happy about it, darling?"

He grinned, with somber eyes. "Sure I am. Didn't I tell you once that anything that made you happy makes me happy, too?"

"But you don't look very happy about it."

He managed a pretty good smile then. "You ought to start again on your book, Phil. When I get paid, is a moment of opportunity, with superiors, the mighty in place and power, as well as influential strangers playing a critical part. These contacts and openings to greatly expanded fortunes and much personal gratification must be managed with tact and diplomacy.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves launched in a year in which the entire future and its destinies and fortunes are dependent upon the decisions and manipulations applied to suddenly precipitated opportunities for growth, expansion and stability of place, position and prestige. This may involve radical change of environs and objectives.

A child born on this day may be excellently endowed with forces and faculties for making a signal success of its life. Its originality, inventiveness and audacity, as well as its spirit of independence and adventure, may land it in a brilliant place in the limelight.

For Sunday, April 30

Sunday's horoscope is a fairly interesting one, having the forecast of a matter coming up for definite action, probably in a rather unusual or rare chain of circumstances. It might be in the realm of the metaphysical or the occult. In all matters finances may be jeopardized unless some economy or self-restraint be exercised.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a rather unusual matter to come up in a peculiar connection. It calls for prompt and possibly decisive action. This demands sound consideration because of its curious angles and because there is a note of warning against extravagance.

A child born on this day may be fairly talented and ambitious. However, it may be disposed to attribute too much to "front" show and appearances.

Folks who don't like Hitler find small comfort in the fact he's now fifty. That's ten years short of the usual retirement age.

"Does he like it?" She whispered because there was awe in her voice.

I'll get another typewriter and then we'll both work. It will be something more we'll share."

Phil rubbed his cheek with a nervous gesture that was new to him. "We can't fool ourselves, Nell. That book won't ever be written, I guess."

"Nonsense!" she said, heartily, the way she spoke to Jessica when the baby fell down and hurt herself.

Phil thought of it: "See, pet, you aren't really hurt! You've only got a scratched knee. But the big sidewalk has a big spot on it where you fell. We'll have a cookie and forget all about it."

"I guess I'll have to take my cookie and forget about it," he said, speaking his thoughts aloud.

"Whatever are you talking about?" she asked, laughing. "Maybe I'd better tell you. You're a smart girl, so maybe you already know what kind of a man you're married to."

"I do," she said proudly. "I'm married to a man who is dear and sweet, and wise and kind . . ."

"And we'll always be good friends," he finished.

"You're trying to be dramatic. I was going to end by saying . . . the only man I'd ever want to be married to."

"I'd kiss you, Nell, except that it isn't quite proper to kiss a girl in the park when you're married to her."

"When I was listing your virtues, I forgot to mention that sense of humor that charms me. All her gaiety could not erase the purpose from his face. The sense of humor that you mention, and the charm which you have been so kind as to mention before, Nell, are practically my only attributes. I'm pretty serious about this."

"About what?"

"Things that you've got to know."

Eleanor laughed until the tears came to her eyes. "Oh, Phil, you idiot! After being married to you for over two years, are you going to tell me what you're really like? That's funny! I know that you always wear down one side of your toothbrush, and I know everything you like to eat, and that no power on earth can make you unbutton a button without practically tearing it out. I know . . ."

"Do you know that you're going places and that I'm always going to be a good—not a great—reporter? And that I'm an easy-going chap with plenty of ambition but no industry? And that I would be happy all my life to put around doing what I like to do on assignments and, perhaps, having a garden some day?"

"What's wrong with that?" she asked stoutly.

"Two people in harness, my dear girl, travel better when they travel the same pace."

"But don't we? Or did you think I was planning to hire a footman tomorrow?"

"I've got a hunch that some day you may be up in the big money brackets. Where do you think I'll be then?"

"With me—all my life, I hope."

"Surprisingly," he said nothing. His eyes lingered on her face for a few moments, then moved off to the horizon.

Eleanor felt a swift sense of fear again.

She said: "Phil, you wouldn't ever let anything—your success or my success, or other men, or other women—come between us, would you?"

He smiled at her. His smile was sweet, a little like Jessica's.

"I have two worlds," she said at last when he didn't speak. "There's the world I've just found for myself and that is important. I've felt like a new person. But there is another world. OUR world. I don't want it to ever be any different."

"Money and success do things to people," he murmured.

"Not to us! Don't you see, Phil, it will always be US. I couldn't have written that story if it hadn't been for you." Even as she was saying it, she didn't know why she was, because Phil had not contributed anything she could put her finger on. "I need you, darling. I'll always need you. And I don't need anyone else in the world. I am thoroughly an individual—except where you're concerned."

He said: "Come along, Nell. We haven't broken the news to Jessica yet that her ma's a published author."

Eleanor felt that there were unsaid things between them that she would have to try to understand some day.

Today's Horoscope

Today's birthday child will have excellent fortunes during the year just commencing. Great gain will come through the medium of a stranger, a lucky speculation, or through military folk. The child born on this date may be assured of success. He will be clever, and original, with sound judgment, although very observant and critical. He will also be systematic, methodical and intuitive.

Hints on Etiquette

When a friend offers to call for you at a certain time, don't keep him or her waiting. Be ready when the time comes.

Horoscope For Sunday

Moderate fortune is assured throughout the coming year for those whose birthday is today. Close supervision of expenditures is, however, advised. Clever and imaginative children will be born today. External appearances will influence them unduly, however, and they will be inclined to attach more importance to outward show than to true worth of character. Those who train them should strive to overcome this tendency.

NOTICE OF HEARING FOR PAROLE

Mansfield, Ohio, April 22, 1939.
No. 26,708, Ernest Dagon, a prisoner now confined in the Ohio State Reformatory, Mansfield, admitted from Pickaway County, convicted August 24, 1938 of the crime of Automobile Theft, and serving a sentence of one to 20 years, is eligible for a hearing before the BOARD OF PAROLE, on or after July 1, 1939.

The Board of Parole By J. J. FEENEY, Parole and Record Clerk. (April 22, 1939) D.

The Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

of the Rhodes Trust (for Rhodes scholars). Only last winter he came here, ostensibly on Rhodes matters, but actually to sound out American sentiment toward British policy. He traveled widely, talked with all sorts of people, from newspaper editors to Tom Corcoran, and learned far more than Anthony Eden did in his more spotlighted visit.

RELIGIOUS MYSTIC

The new Ambassador is deeply religious, something of a mystic, and is a man who is not afraid to express himself on almost any question. He is absolutely the reverse of the close-lipped career diplomats who have held the post of British Ambassador in recent years.

Visiting the United States in 1923, he told the Williamstown Institute of Politics that prohibition might be the cause of future wars between the United States and "wet" countries. This was in the days of our squabbles over rum-running. The Ten Commandments and the Sermon on the Mount, Lothian also said, had caused more wars than anything else, because of controversies over how they should be applied.

Lothian also had the nerve to speak out in the House of Lords last year to advocate reopening war debt discussion and the immediate resumption of token payments to the United States.

LOTHIAN AND HITLER

Son of a Roman Catholic, Lothian was educated in a Jesuit School, but left the church to become a Christian Scientist. This faith became the chief bond of the famous Cliveden set, of which Lord and Lady Astor and Geoffrey Dawson, editor of The London Times, also are members — all Christian Scientists.

Lothian made several trips to Germany when Hitler first came into power regarding the status of the Scientists in the Reich, and came to have a great admiration for the Nazi dictator. Friends of Lothian's said that the notes which the new Ambassador took after each visit revealed a sympathy between the two mystics.

Perhaps as a result of this, Lothian and the Cliveden set became the chief advocates of Anglo-German friendship, were largely responsible for Chamberlain's appeasement policy. It was Lothian's belief that Hitler was sincere, that a strong Nazi Germany was far preferable to a strong Russia, and that Hitler could act as the buffer against Stalin.

EX-OFFICIO MEMBER

Lord Lothian is virtually an ex-officio member of the British Cabinet, probably has more influence even than actual Cabinet members, who must come from the House of Commons. As such he will exert tremendous weight as British Ambassador to the United States, and his word will be law as far as Anglo-American relations are concerned. And since he will come to Washington as a powerful pleader, it is important to know exactly what his views are today.

During his visit here last winter, Lothian admitted quite frankly that "appeasement" had been a mistake. His attitude toward Hitler was completely reversed, and he felt that Chamberlain had been sadly outsmarted in his negotiations at Munich.

"England will fight," Lord Lothian told his American friends. "There can no longer be any doubt of that."

He also made it emphatically clear that he considered the future peace of the world dependent on the closest possible cooperation between Great Britain and the United States. These two countries, he believes, can and should police the world.

That, undoubtedly, will be the

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND

The brawling, turbulent, sudden-death milieu of the toughest rougher town in the cattle country of the 1870's is the background against which Errol Flynn projects his virile, adventurous personality in "Dodge City." The Warner Bros. Technicolor production which opens Sunday at the Grand theatre.

Dealing with the most turbulent era of the old west, it is a production of a scope and authenticity that may well make it remembered as a milestone in motion picture history.

Making the unmistakably British Errol Flynn his hero may seem a novelty to the casual film-goer but it will require no stretching of credibility on the part of those who are steeped in the history of the period and the region which are covered in "Dodge City." For there were a number of adventurous young Britons who became well-known figures in the pioneer days of the west and it is easy to believe that such a fellow as Flynn is in actuality could well have been one of them.

keystone of his policy as Ambassador.

LOTHIAN MERRY-GO-ROUND

The new British Ambassador once called U. S. Ambassador Bullitt "a liar" after Bullitt had denounced Lloyd George's Russian policy before the U. S. Senate . . . As secretary to Lloyd George during the World War, Lothian became an ardent Woodrow Wilson disciple . . . Lloyd George, commenting on a certain church group, said that its members looked narrow and stubborn. Lothian replied: "When you go to heaven, you will find plenty of them there." . . . Lothian has written six articles in the Christian Science Monitor magazine in the last four years.

FIFTH CHARGE FILED

A fifth charge of issuing a bad check was transcribed to Common Pleas court Friday against Loren L. Bockart, N. Court street, now in the county jail. Bockart is accused in the last charge of issuing a check for $10 to W. E. Wallace on April 1 without funds in the bank. He denied the charge in Mayor W. B. Cady's court. Four other charges had previously been filed.

MURRAY SWEPSTON DEAD

Murray T. Swebston, 68, formerly a member of Chillicothe council and deputy state of weights and measures in Ross county, died Friday at his home in Columbus. Mr. Swebston was a native of Hocking county. Services will be held Sunday afternoon with burial at Adelphi.

TAX OFFICIALS ASK ASSISTANCE

Merchants Urged To Help Sales Receipt Program In Best Manner

Ohio retail merchants are being urged by the Ohio Sales Tax Section not to enter into agreements with civic organizations participating in sales tax collection campaigns for cash redemption of stamps after May 1, according to J. E. Williams, chief of the Ohio Sales Tax Section.

"When sales tax stamps acquire a cash value of three percent of their face value after May 1," Mr. Williams said today, "efforts will undoubtedly be expended by some civic groups which may benefit under the new sales tax redemption law to secure monopolies on stamp supplies by entering into agreements with merchants for all stamps not taken up by customers. This practice would be an undesirable one, from the standpoint of ethics alone. The sales tax redemption law was not designed to benefit only a few organizations. Its benefits are to be extended to all which may qualify. The state wishes as many different groups to gain cash redemptions as possible."

Purpose Threatened

"Secondly," Mr. Williams continued, "such a practice would tend toward defeating the very purpose of the act; namely, to induce all customers to demand and receive their sales tax receipts. Every individual is requested to collect his stamps from the retail dealer and then present them to whatever organization he prefers to favor for the cash redemption." Pointing out that the law does not specifically forbid agreements by merchants to save redeemable stamps for organizations, Mr. Williams stated, however, that the Sales Tax Section will make every effort to discourage such practices.

The sales tax redemption law, signed by the Governor on February 28, becomes effective May 1. A new issue of stamps, different in color and design from the present issue, will be distributed to retail dealers starting May 1. Only the new stamps are redeemable at three percent of their face value after that date.

of the Rhodes Trust (for Rhodes scholars). Only last winter he came here, ostensibly on Rhodes matters, but actually to sound out American sentiment toward British policy. He traveled widely, talked with all sorts of people, from newspaper editors to Tom Corcoran, and learned far more than Anthony Eden did in his more spotlighted visit.

RELIGIOUS MYSTIC

The new Ambassador is deeply religious, something of a mystic, and is a man who is not afraid to express himself on almost any question. He is absolutely the reverse of the close-lipped career diplomats who have held the post of British Ambassador in recent years.

Visiting the United States in 1923, he told the Williamstown Institute of Politics that prohibition might be the cause of future wars between the United States and "wet" countries. This was in the days of our squabbles over rum-running. The Ten Commandments and the Sermon on the Mount, Lothian also said, had caused more wars than anything else, because of controversies over how they should be applied.

Lothian also had the nerve to speak out in the House of Lords last year to advocate reopening war debt discussion and the immediate resumption of token payments to the United States.

LOTHIAN AND HITLER

Son of a Roman Catholic, Lothian was educated in a Jesuit School, but left the church to become a Christian Scientist. This faith became the chief bond of the famous Cliveden set, of which Lord and Lady Astor and Geoffrey Dawson, editor of The London Times, also are members — all Christian Scientists.

Lothian made several trips to Germany when Hitler first came into power regarding the status of the Scientists in the Reich, and came to have a great admiration for the Nazi dictator. Friends of Lothian's said that the notes which the new Ambassador took after each visit revealed a sympathy between the two mystics.

Perhaps as a result of this, Lothian and the Cliveden set became the chief advocates of Anglo-German friendship, were largely responsible for Chamberlain's appeasement policy. It was Lothian's belief that Hitler was sincere, that a strong Nazi Germany was far preferable to a strong Russia, and that Hitler could act as the buffer against Stalin.

EX-OFFICIO MEMBER

Lord Lothian is virtually an ex-officio member of the British Cabinet, probably has more influence even than actual Cabinet members, who must come from the House of Commons. As such he will exert tremendous weight as British Ambassador to the United States, and his word will be law as far as Anglo-American relations are concerned. And since he will come to Washington as a powerful pleader, it is important to know exactly what his views are today.

During his visit here last Winter, Lothian admitted quite frankly that "appeasement" had been a mistake. His attitude toward Hitler was completely reversed, and he felt that Chamberlain had been sadly outsmarted in his negotiations at Munich.

"England will fight," Lord Lothian told his American friends. "There can no longer be any doubt of that."

He also made it emphatically clear that he considered the future peace of the world dependent on the closest possible cooperation between Great Britain and the United States. These two countries, he believes, can and should police the world.

That, undoubtedly, will be the

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND

The brawling, turbulent, sudden-death milieu of the toughest roughest town in the cattle country of the 1870's is the background against which Errol Flynn projects his virile, adventurous personality in "Dodge City," the Warner Bros. Technicolor production which opens Sunday at the Grand theatre.

Dealing with the most turbulent era of the old west, it is a production of a scope and authenticity that may well make it remembered as a milestone in motion picture history.

Making the unmistakably British Errol Flynn its hero may seem a novelty to the casual film-goer but it will require no stretching of credibility on the part of those who are steeped in the history of the period and the region which are covered in "Dodge City." For there were a number of adventurous young Britons who became well-known figures in the pioneer days of the west and it is easy to believe that such a fellow as Flynn is in actuality could well have been one of them.

keystone of his policy as Ambassador.

LOTHIAN MERRY-GO-ROUND

The new British Ambassador once called U. S. Ambassador Bullitt "a liar" after Bullitt had denounced Lloyd George's Russian policy before the U. S. Senate . . . As secretary to Lloyd George during the World War, Lothian became an ardent Woodrow Wilson disciple . . . Lloyd George, commenting on a certain church group, said that its members looked narrow and stubborn. Lothian replied: "When you go to heaven, you will find plenty of them there." . . . Lothian has written six articles in the Christian Science Monitor magazine in the last four years.

TAX OFFICIALS ASK ASSISTANCE

Merchants Urged To Help Sales Receipt Program In Best Manner

Ohio retail merchants are being urged by the Ohio Sales Tax Section not to enter into agreements with civic organizations participating in sales tax collection campaigns for cash redemption of stamps after May 1, according to J. E. Williams, chief of the Ohio Sales Tax Section.

"When sales tax stamps acquire a cash value of three percent of their face value after May 1," Mr. Williams said today, "efforts will undoubtedly be expended by some civic groups which may benefit under the new sales tax redemption law to secure monopolies on stamp supplies by entering into agreements with merchants for all stamps not taken up by customers. This practice would be an undesirable one, from the standpoint of ethics alone. The sales tax redemption law was not designed to benefit only a few organizations. Its benefits are to be extended to all which may qualify. The state wishes as many different groups to gain cash redemptions as possible."

Purpose Threatened

"Secondly," Mr. Williams continued, "such a practice would tend toward defeating the very purpose of the act; namely, to induce all customers to demand and receive their sales tax receipts. Every individual is requested to collect his stamps from the retail dealer and then present them to whatever organization he prefers to favor for the cash redemption." Pointing out that the law does not specifically forbid agreements by merchants to save redeemable stamps for organizations, Mr. Williams stated, however, that the Sales Tax Section will make every effort to discourage such practices.

The sales tax redemption law, signed by the Governor on February 28, becomes effective May 1. A new issue of stamps, different in color and design from the present issue, will be distributed to retail dealers starting May 1. Only the new stamps are redeemable at three percent of their face value after that date.

SCOUT LEADERS PREPARE FOR 'MUCH' ACTIVITY IN DISTRICT

COUNTY TROOPS TO TAKE PART IN MAY 6 FETE

Father And Son Banquet To Be Major Event; Summer Camping Discussed

Plans for Pickaway district scout work were outlined Friday night at a meeting of Scout officials held at the home of William D. Radcliff, of Williamsport, district commissioner.

Indications point to 100 percent participation of Circleville and Pickaway county troops in the annual Boy Scout-O-Rama to be held in Columbus on Saturday, May 6. Several troops will be entered in the competitive events and model airplane performance. All troops will take part in the grand entry.

The Rev. Robert T. Kelsey, general chairman, discussed the plans for the first annual Pickaway district Father and Son banquet to be held in Memorial hall Tuesday, May 9. He reported that members of the committees were visiting meetings of all troops of the district to guarantee participation.

The banquet, to whom prospective Scouts and their fathers, as well as Scouts and their fathers, are invited, is expected to be the most outstanding Scout event promoted here in several years.

Summer camping was discussed with leaders of Troop 107, sponsored by the Circleville Methodist Episcopal church announcing that over 60 percent of the membership would be enrolled in camping. The monthly reports of commissioner visitations to the troops were given.

Those present at the meeting included Mr. Radcliff, the Rev. Mr. Kelsey, Herman Hill, Ervin Leist, Dr. David Goldschmidt, Don Beaty, Kenneth Lea, Roger Lozier, Kenneth Bobb, Joe Bell and Howard Kautz, field Scout executive.

PRELIMINARIES CONDUCTED FOR MARBLE PRIZES

Preliminaries in the Pickaway county marble tournament, sponsored by the Coca-Cola Bottling Co., and conducted by the recreation department of W.P.A., were held Saturday with the following youngsters selected to represent their schools in the finals next Saturday: Walnut street school, Bobbie Turner and Reynold Williams; Corwin, Walter Jones and Paul Kirby; Franklin, David Olney and Wilson Clark, and Circleville high, Charles Arledge and Marshal Winner.

Approximately 60 youngsters took part in the contests Saturday, transferred to the Corwin school playground after it was found the Utilities field was too wet. The contests were conducted by L. V. Hulse, area supervisor, and Harry Sabine, recreation director, under W.P.A.

Finals will be held next Saturday. Winners of preliminaries in Williamsport, New Holland, Ashville and Darbyville will take part in the finals.

Youngsters who could not take part in the Saturday contests may take part in those next Saturday.

VETERAN FIREMAN TO END SERVICE SUNDAY MORNING

Thomas Strawser, 228 Logan street, who has been a regular Circleville fireman since Dec. 1, 1911, will bid farewell to his position at 7 a. m. Sunday when he will retire from the department on pension. Ill health resulted in Mr. Strawser asking to be pensioned.

Mr. Strawser had served as a call fireman from 1899 until his appointment to the position as a regular fireman.

Frederick A. Howell, Scioto and Water streets, has been appointed from the civil service list to succeed Mr. Strawser.

YOUNG DIVORCE

Suit for divorce charging neglect of duty and cruelty was filed in Common Pleas court Saturday by Stanley Young, Pleasant street, against Mildred Young, E. Water street. The petition says they were married Sept. 24, 1933 in Greenup, Ky. They have no children.

CONTEMPT LEADS TO JAIL

Charles Ebenhack, of Williamsport, was sentenced to 10 days in the county jail by Judge Meeker Terwilliger, Saturday morning, on a charge of contempt in failure to pay $5 a week to Mrs. Esther Ebenhack, W. Main street, for support of a child.

ORGANIST FOUND SANE MUST FACE KIDNAP CHARGE

PASADENA, Cal., April 29 — Found by psychiatrists to be sane, Townsend Davis, 40-year-old church organ player, was on trial in Pasadena today on charges of kidnapping an 8-year-old girl. Davis is accused of taking the girl, Ann Switzer, from her home in Pasadena and driving her to a point near the Arizona line, where he was arrested several weeks ago. He claimed he was taking her to the home of a minister because the child was not happy at home.

TWO RUSSIANS DOWN IN WILD CANADIAN AREA

Hero Of Red Nation Hurt Painfully, Given Food By Fishermen

(Continued from Page One) having been in the air some 22 hours and 40 minutes on the attempted 4,600-mile air jaunt, designed to signalize Russian participation in the World's Fair at New York. The flight ended about 700 miles short of its goal.

Unable to converse with the French-speaking inhabitants of Misco, the aviators spent a miserable night with their badly damaged craft.

One Suffers Cracked Ribs
One of them was suffering, according to fishermen who saw them, from several cracked ribs sustained when the plane plunged into the marshland after one of the rotors went out of commission.

Kokkinaki, a "hero of the Soviet Union" and a well known Soviet Polar airman, and his navigator, Gorielko, obtained food and learned of their whereabouts on a map by talking with local fishermen by means of the sign language.

A rough bed of boughs was prepared for the injured flier, and the pair stayed close to the wreckage all night, according to Lawrence Vibert, the Misco island lighthouse keeper who gave the aviators food.

Misco island is accessible only by water from nearby Shippegan island, a mile south of Misco. Ice floes dot Misco harbor, separating the islands, but a rowboat can work through from Shippegan.

At daybreak, the two Canadians departed to aid the fliers—Royal Canadian Mounted Police Constable Marcel Theriault of Shippegan and Dr. A. Robichaud of Tracadie, N. B., left from the opposite shore and planned to negotiate the six or seven miles to the plane with the aid of horse and sled.

Dr. Robichaud said the injured aviator would be taken to the mainland and conveyed by ambulance to a hospital in Bathurst today.

Natives of the Misco region reported the plane was seriously damaged, its wings and both propellers smashed and its engines badly wrecked.

Authorities at Misco pointed out that rescue planes from New York and Boston, Moncton, N. B., St. John or Upper Canada probably would not be able to make a landing at Misco.

POLICEMAN ADMITS THEFT OF STAMPS FROM SAFE IN HIS HEADQUARTERS

CHICAGO, April 29 — Charged with having tried to pull off the crudest of crimes, a member of Chicago's own "Scotland Yard" of super sleuths was under arrest today.

He is Policeman Marvin Floren, accused of having stolen $2,200 worth of rare stamps from the collection in the office safe of his commanding officer, Capt. Michael Naughton.

When Naughton found the stamps gone he had no trouble figuring it was an inside job. Thieves don't break into police stations. Whoever it was, he decided, might also be foolish enough to try and peddle the hot stamps.

He called up a few dealers. He found one where the stolen stamps had been offered. He got a description of the man, and it fitted Floren. The policeman, he said, confessed.

THE GARDEN CLINIC

By VICTOR H. RIES, O. S. U. floriculturist

QUESTION: Are these Gerberas hardy and satisfactory in the garden?

ANSWER: Although the salesman said "Yes," they are not hardy in Ohio gardens although they will give satisfactory results if planted out in the Spring from plants in at least three-inch pots. They are sometimes called Transvaal daisies.

QUESTION: Is it true the strawberry begonia (mother of thousands) is hardy?

ANSWER: Yes, it is absolutely hardy. It stood 23 degrees below zero in my own garden four years ago.

QUESTION: How do they make the flowers stay in place in these arrangements in the very low bowls.

ANSWER: These is a new type of flower holder offered for sale consisting of a piece of lead about a quarter of an inch thick in which there are imbedded a large number of brass nails. The ends of the flower stems are speared on these points which hold them in place at any desired angle. You will be able to buy these at department stores, gift shops, or florists.

QUESTION: Can I grow these large flowered ranunculus and anemones in my garden?

ANSWER: Although these are often sold at flower shows as being perfectly satisfactory and hardy, my own experience has been that they cannot be depended upon either to bloom or to live over winter.

QUESTION: Can I use the Japanese yew for a hedge? I see it is used in so many of the gardens here at the show.

ANSWER: The Japanese yew and its different varieties is one of our most satisfactory evergreen hedges.

QUESTION: Where can I get information on how to arrange flowers?

ANSWER: There are a great many books on this subject. I would suggest that you start with How to Arrange Flowers by Dorothy Biddle, or Flower Arrangement by Rockwell and Grayson. In addition to these, The Arrangement of Flowers by Mrs. Walter Hine, New Flower Arrangements by Mrs. Walter Hine, The Way of Japanese Flower Arrangement by Koehn, Japanese Flower Arrangement for Modern Homes by Margaret Preininger, A Creative Flower Arrangement by Biddle and Blom, and Miniature Flower Arrangements by Mason and Waas are among the more satisfactory books.

QUESTION: What do you think were the outstanding exhibits of the show?

ANSWER: That is hard to answer because it would depend upon your own interest. Among the gardens, two of the rock gardens, the little formal rose garden, the azalea garden, and the bulb garden were as fine as any you will ever see. The exhibits of orchids, the begonia exhibit were breath-taking. The flower arrangement exhibits of the New York Federation of Garden Clubs, the New Jersey Federation of Garden Clubs, and the Garden Club of America, all of which were changed daily, were an inspiration to any one.

QUESTION: Isn't the New York Show the largest flower show in the country?

ANSWER: Although the New York Show is old and one of the largest, the St. Louis Show I believe covers a greater acreage.

QUESTION: How many people attend this Show?

ANSWER: According to the records just released, 250,000 visited the Show.

QUESTION: What is the new red marigold advertised by one of the seed companies? Is it really red?

ANSWER: Although the new marigold is a very lovely flower, it can hardly be called red. It merely has the mahogany color that we have known so long in the French marigold transferred to the American type.

QUESTION: Can you name that plant for me or tell me where I can find out the name of it?

ANSWER: Unfortunately, as in many of our flower shows, but few of the plants in the show are labeled so that the visitor can find out what they are. You may be fortunate enough to find a salesman with the exhibit who can name the plant for you.

Colds, Influenza Mar Health During April

With the exception of colds and influenza Pickaway countians enjoyed good health during April. The report of Dr. A. D. Blackburn, county health commissioner, presented to the board of health at its regular meeting Friday afternoon, showed 86 cases of influenza, two cases of mumps, 11 of chickenpox and one of measles recorded during the month. There are no quarantines at the present time.

During the month eight cases of tuberculosis were admitted to medical service. Two were positive cases and six were suspects. One patient was admitted to Ohio State Sanatorium. Two cases were released from sanatoria as arrested cases.

Dr. Blackburn and Miss Margaret Hunsicker, county nurse, made nine visits to public schools in the examination of 340 children. Two hundred and thirty-six children were found to have some physical defect. Forty-two children have had defects corrected.

Reports Disclosed
The report showed the following results: 92 retarded in their grade, 143 underweight, 17 had disease of the eyes, 104 had defects in vision, eight had disease of the ears, 47 had defective hearing, 79 needed dental attention, 88 had enlarged or diseased tonsils, four had defective speech, 32 had enlarged cervical lands, eight had enlarged thygroid lands, seven had skin disease, three showed signs of heart disease, two showed symptoms of lung disease, three had orthopedic defects and five had symptoms of nervous affection.

Among the 340 children examined, eleven had dental work done recently, eight are wearing glasses, 29 had their tonsils removed and two had orthopedic corrections.

When defects were found in the children a card was sent to the parents advising them to take the child to their family physician or dentist.

Deaths Exceed Births
Deaths in the county are far exceeding the births so far this year. There have been 78 deaths recorded as compared with 49 births.

During the month the nurse visited 43 homes, made three trips to Columbus clinics, 12 visits to schools, conducted 21 conferences and assisted in the school examinations.

SCOUT LEADERS PREPARE FOR MUCH ACTIVITY IN DISTRICT

COUNTY TROOPS TO TAKE PART IN MAY 6 FETE

Father And Son Banquet To Be Major Event; Summer Camping Discussed

Plans for Pickaway district scout work were outlined Friday night at a meeting of Scout officials held at the home of William D. Radcliff, of Williamsport, district commissioner.

Indications point to 100 percent participation of Circleville and Pickaway county troops in the annual Boy Scout-O-Rama to be held in Columbus on Saturday, May 6. Several troops will be entered in the competitive events and model airplane performance. All troops will take part in the grand entry.

The Rev. Robert T. Kelsey, general chairman, discussed the plans for the first annual Pickaway district Father and Son banquet to be held in Memorial hall Tuesday, May 9. He reported that members of the committees were visiting meetings of all troops of the district to guarantee participation.

The banquet, to whom prospective Scouts and their fathers, as well as Scouts and their fathers, are invited, is expected to be the most outstanding Scout event promoted here in several years.

Summer camping was discussed with leaders of Troop 107, sponsored by the Circleville Methodist Episcopal church announcing that over 60 percent of the membership would be enrolled in camping. The monthly reports of commissioner visitations to the troops were given.

Those present at the meeting included Mr. Radcliff, the Rev. Mr. Kelsey, Herman Hill, Ervin Leist, Dr. David Goldschmidt, Don Beatty, Kenneth Lea, Roger Lozier, Kenneth Bobb, Joe Bell and Howard Kautz, field Scout executive.

PRELIMINARIES CONDUCTED FOR MARBLE PRIZES

Preliminaries in the Pickaway county marble tournament, sponsored by the Coca-Cola Bottling Co., and conducted by the recreation department of W.P.A., were held Saturday with the following youngsters selected to represent their schools in the finals next Saturday: Walnut street school, Bobbie Turner and Reynold Williams; Corwin, Walter Jones and Paul Kirby; Franklin, David Olney and Wilson Clark, and Circleville high, Charles Arledge and Marshall Winner.

Approximately 60 youngsters took part in the contests Saturday, transferred to the Corwin school playground after it was found the Utilities field was too wet. The contests were conducted by L. V. Hulise, area supervisor, and Harry Sabine, recreation director, under W.P.A.

Finals will be held next Saturday. Winners of preliminaries in Williamsport, New Holland, Ashville and Darbyville will take part in the finals.

Youngsters who could not take part in the Saturday contests may take part in those next Saturday.

VETERAN FIREMAN TO END SERVICE SUNDAY MORNING

Thomas Strawser, 228 Logan street, who has been a regular Circleville fireman since Dec. 1, 1911, will bid farewell to his position at 7 a. m. Sunday when he will retire from the department on pension. Ill health resulted in Mr. Strawser asking to be pensioned.

Mr. Strawser had served as a call fireman from 1899 until his appointment to the position as a regular fireman.

Frederick A. Howell, Scioto and Water streets, has been appointed from the civil service list to succeed Mr. Strawser.

having been in the air some 22 hours and 40 minutes on the attempted 4,600-mile air jaunt, designed to signalize Russian participation in the World's Fair at New York. The flight ended about 700 miles short of its goal.

Unable to converse with the French-speaking inhabitants of Misco, the aviators spent a miserable night with their badly damaged craft.

One Suffers Cracked Ribs
One of them was suffering, according to fishermen who saw them, from several cracked ribs sustained when the plane plunged into the marshland after one of the motors went out of commission.

Kokkinaki, a "hero of the Soviet Union" and a well known Soviet Polar airman, and his navigator, Gordienko, obtained food and learned of their whereabouts on a map by talking with local fishermen by means of the sign language.

A rough bed of boughs was prepared for the injured flier, and the pair stayed close to the wreckage all night, according to Lawrence Vibert, the Misco island lighthouse keeper who gave the aviators food.

Misco island is accessible only by water from nearby Shippegan island, a mile south of Misco. Ice floes dot Misco harbor, separating the islands, but a rowboat can work through from Shippegan.

At daybreak, the two Canadians departed to aid the fliers—Royal Canadian Mounted Police Constable Marcel Theriault of Shippegan and Dr. A. Robichaud of Tracadie, N. B., left from the opposite shore and planned to negotiate the six or seven miles to the plane with the aid of horse and sled.

Dr. Robichaud said the injured aviator would be taken to the mainland and conveyed by ambulance to a hospital in Bathurst today.

Natives of the Misco region reported the plane was seriously damaged, its wings and both propellers smashed and its engines badly wrecked.

Authorities at Misco pointed out that rescue planes from New York and Boston, Moncton, N. B., St. John or Upper Canada probably would not be able to make a landing at Misco.
